OPIOID CRISIS RESPONSE ACT (OCRA): On Monday, September 17, 2018, the Senate passed the Opioid Crisis Response Act (OCRA). This bipartisan bill contains more than 70 proposals designed to help combat the opioid and heroin epidemic. Included in the OCRA are important initiatives and priorities that Senator Cantwell has authored and advocated for:

ACCOUNTABILITY FOR DRUG MANUFACTURERS: The OCRA includes Senator Cantwell's provisions to increase civil and criminal penalties on opioid manufacturers that fail to report suspicious orders of opioids or maintain effective controls against negligent distribution of opioids.

- Strengthens existing lawsuits by Everett, Seattle, and other localities against negligent opioid makers.
- Helps keep first responders in Washington state safe by taking more illicit drugs off the street.

HELP PREVENT FATAL OVERDOSES AND PROTECT FIRST RESPONDERS:

The OCRA includes $46 million in annual federal funds for training and resources designed to help first responders and law enforcement prevent fatal overdoses and provide training to limit their exposure to deadly opioids, including fentanyl and carfentanyl.

Who This Helps:

- First responders and law enforcement agencies in Seattle, Everett, and across the state can apply for federal funds to help protect their officers/responders from exposure to deadly opioids.
- First responders and law enforcement agencies in Seattle, Everett, and across the state can apply for federal funds designed to provide training and resources for responding to drug overdoses.

ENSURE EXPANDED ADDICTION TREATMENT COVERAGE: The OCRA makes permanent the ability for qualified physicians to prescribe Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT), including Suboxone, for up to 275 patients at a time. This provision was set to expire in 2021.

Who This Helps:

- Physicians providing Medication-Assisted Treatment in Seattle, Everett, and across the state can permanently treat up to 275 patients, ensuring continued coverage for Washingtonians receiving treatment for opioid addiction.
- With a shortage of physicians able to provide Medication-Assisted Treatment, this provision makes sure that more patients are able to access life-saving care.

FUNDS DRUG COURTS: The OCRA provides $75 million in annual funds for the Drug Court program, which helps reduce substance abuse and reduces criminal recidivism among non-violent offenders. In FY17, the Drug Court program provided $1.2 million to Washington state.
